

Canadian Disaster and Humanitarian Response Training Program

© Anos Herz

3 days specialized NGO training course
May 12-14th 2014

- Current Trends
- New Tools
- More effective humanitarian response

Location

*Desautels School of Management
McGill University, Montreal*

DAY 1

Accountability & E-Transfers

Patrick Robitaille & Paula Tenaglia,
Independent Consultants

DAY 2

New Technologies and Urban Emergencies

Jennifer Chan MD,
MPH University of Chicago &
Ronak Patel MD,
MPH Harvard Humanitarian Initiative

DAY 3

New Directions

Peter Walker PhD, Tufts University

Time

8:00AM – 5:30PM

Price

$800 CAD

Rationale

Prompting the call for 'greater accountability, stringent oversight, better coordination, and professionalism' this 3-Day Course will enable participants to demonstrate a comprehensive understanding of key approaches to enhance accountability, how the use of new technologies can increase aid effectiveness, and how current trends are shaping humanitarian response and the way forward.

What does the course cover?

Applied humanitarian technologies, cash transfers, tools to enhance quality and accountability of response efforts, new advances in the field and current trends that impact humanitarian response including urbanization and climate change.

Who should attend?

This course aims to gather professional humanitarian workers from INGOs, NGOs, UN, universities and government agencies from around the world. This course is appropriate for those currently working in the humanitarian sector with field experience in natural disasters and complex emergencies and participants in the Introductory Course of the Canadian Disaster and Humanitarian Response.

Methodology

The approach is fully participatory, allowing participants to be involved in an engaging and dynamic way through presentations, debates and learning activities.

For questions & application:

Mélanie Coutu
Program Manager

McGill University
Department of Family Medicine
melanie.coutu3@mcgill.ca

With the special collaboration of:

McGill

Department of Family Medicine
Département de médecine de famille